Second Inning.

Mertes negotiated a base on balls. Dahlen was likewise favored and the elitation began to look good. Devin's grounder forced Dahlen at eccond. Mertes going a third-on the past test and the bases were full Strang then beat out a slow hit to the infield, scoring Mertes, and leaving the bases full. Mathewson broke up the fun by ripping off a grounder, which Lewis quickly turned into a double play. ONE RUN.

Jordan spiloed a hot single between Gilbert and McGann, and went to second on Maloney's prefix sacrifice in front of the plate. Bergen popped a high five to Dahlen. Alperman filed out to Strang. No RUNS.

ESTIMATING THE CROWD.

When The Picket won the American Derby at Washington Park, in Chicago, in 1903, the attendance at that course was figured at 58,000. Several conservative estimates to-day put the number here at even a greater figure than 60,000. The mammoth grand stand alone stats 27,000 and before the first race every seat was occupied.

Such a large attendance of women has never before been seen at a race track. They represented every type and age and degree of beauty or comeliness. In the track subways trains were stalled. They were crowded with passengers who suffered intensely from the heat.
